Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railing was the marral of the football world half a road yesterday afternoon between an express train and a coal train. Four lives were sacrificed, a number of passengers in jured and a loss of several thousand dollars occasioned by a blunder.

The youthful telegraph operator at Rock Cut, the scene of the disaster, "thought" that the switch had not been set and rushed out and turned it. The express train, deflected from its right course, thundered along into the coal train.

The horrible consequences of such "thoughts" as this on the part of men whose responsible position should lead them to be so well informed as to their duties that they need not think, but know. make the public wince. It is so hard to call a man to severe account when the integrity of his purpose is beyond question. It was to avoid precisely what he precipi tated that the young telegrapher rushed breathlessly down and turned the switch.

But such mistakes are offenses and ought not to be condened. Punishment should attend them if for no other reason than to set an example to others who have responsible places of trust. It is a misguided mercy which merely sighs over such mistakes and regrets them.

how deplorably it lacks the calm impersonality which should characterize an official communication from the head of a State Department. Everybody will realize from the most cursory reading of the document that Mr. Jorn W. Nortz lost his head and tried to "let down" the Governor by pouring out the vials of his wrath upon him.

The Secretary also displays an animus quite akin to this in his letters to Mr. W. J. K. Kenner, the accredited representaire of Mayor Grant to him in this matter of the census. He made demands for a surrender of the proofs of accuracy in the official census which Mr. Kenner holds in his hards.
